

Biography

Bryce Nash

Daimler Truck North America

Bryce's passion for eMobility started making electric race cars in college at Kettering University. What started as a hobby turned into an interesting international career path, and Bryce is proud to have brought many high voltage projects to reality that others considered impossible!

High voltage racecars, hybrid trucks, commercial EV batteries, transportation sustainability, and Megawatt charging are just a few of the topics he's happy to discuss if you want to have a chat.
